Weekly trends can fluctuate due to security conditions in the region, the political climate in Niger and neighbouring countries, presence of migrants at the flow monitoring points and availability of transport and opportunities. The previous two weeks constitute the highest flows of outgoing and incoming migrants recorded by the flow monitoring. The increase in migrants has mainly been through the flow monitoring point of Seguedine while Arlit has remained constant.

Evolution of representation of 6 main nationalities reported in outgoing and incoming flows.

Data collection at the flow monitoring points is made possible by funding from the European Union and the Department for International Development (DFID).

Flow monitoring points are placed at known migrant passing points along the Niger migratory route. Data is collected daily at FMPs to inform migrant movements and profiles. The data collected provides a snapshot of migrant movements through the region. The numbers are collected from primary sources and do not claim to reflect all migrants passing through the flow monitoring points.
